Solidarity with the #McStrike! Support McDonald's workers fighting for £10 an hour

MCDONALD'S WORKERS balloted at Crayford (south east London) and Cambridge stores have voted by an incredible 95.7 percent for strikes, and their BFAWU bakers' union has now named Monday 4 September as the first strike day.

The strikes are demanding a £10 an hour wage, the ending of zero hours contracts, the right to union recognition, and against management bullying.

Already, just by voting to strike and organising in the union, the workers have gained an impressive shift from McDonald's—who have stated only now after the strike vote that by the end of 2017 they will implement the twice promised offer of a guaranteed hours contract to every UK McDonald's worker.

The workers and BFAWU rightly want this signed off, but it is a major victory for the some 80,000 workers at McDonald's and shows what getting organised, joining a union and taking action can do.
